

RSL Subsidiary Diploma in Music

This RSL course for music practitioners is innovative, practical and industry focused, ensuring students have the skills and knowledge required for their next steps into the music industry.

Programme of Study

Year 12		Year 13
Unit	Assessment Method	Unit	Assessment Method
Studio Sound Recording	Internal	Rehearsal & Performance	External
Studio Sound Mixing	Internal	Planning a Career in Music	External

Pathways

This qualification will prepare students for progression to employment within the music industry. Example roles include working in music production, copyright and administration, working as stage crew, working within music venues, music agencies and promotion and music retail and sales. It also provides opportunities to access apprenticeships e.g copyright & archive assistant, business administrator and video production.

Student Quotes

'I have enjoyed using the software and microphones to record songs that I am genuinely interested in. I have found learning the different microphone techniques challenging and we have explored how professionals use these to create a high-quality sound. I am looking forward to learning how to use music technology within my performance and making my demo CD.'

Georgia

'Music has allowed me to express my flair and interest in music. It has given me the confidence and platform to play my instrument of choice, while learning about different genres and styles.'

Jacob